Paper Roses

Supplies:

- Scrapbook paper or cardstock in various colors or patterns
- Green construction paper or cardstock (optional)
- Scissors
- Ruler
- Round objects to trace
- Pencil
- Tape or hot glue (with adult supervision)

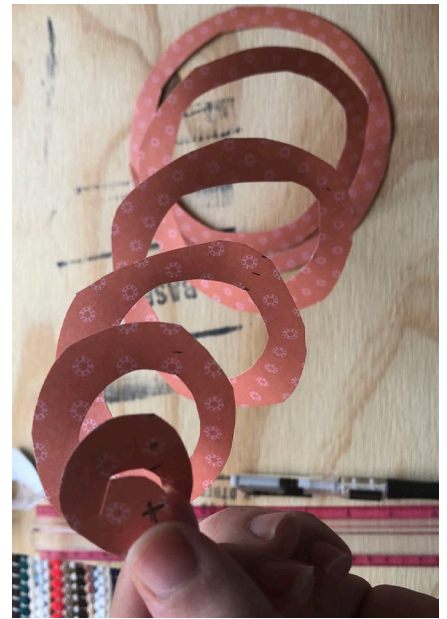

Instructions

1. Trace round objects like glasses and bowls. Cut out circle. Optional: use a ruler to mark the center of the circle and $\frac{1}{2}$ " increments as a guide for when you cut out the spiral.

2. Use scissors to cut a spiral starting at the outside edge of the circle. In one continuous cut, cut bands in 1/2" widths to the center of the circle.

3. Starting at the outside edge, begin rolling the spiral around itself. You may want to begin by wrapping it around your finger to help it take shape.

4. Once all that remains is the end of the spiral, use your tape or hot glue to secure the rounded center to the base of your spiraled rose. Your rose may relax a little from your wrapping once it's secured, and that's fine. Optional: cut leaves out of green paper and glue to the outside edge of the flower. Repeat steps 1-4 as many times as you want for your "bouquet."

5. Arrange your roses into a three-dimensional design.
